- Explain the criteria to be used in evaluating the proposals, and
- The time frames within which the work must be completed.

Award

An award shall be made to the responsible offeror whose proposal is determined, in writing, by the governing authority of the political subdivision to be the most advantageous, considering price and other evaluation factors set forth in the RFP. Please note: unlike the provisions of the Public Bid Law, the governing authority does not have to select the lowest proposal. It selects the most advantageous proposal based on the evaluation factors outlined in the RFP.

Rejection of Proposals

The governing authority of the political subdivision may reject all proposals if doing so is deemed to be in its best interest.

Contract Requirements

If vendors submit written proposals, the proposals of the successful vendor must be incorporated into the final contract.

Remember, whether or not a political subdivision decides to use this RFP process for telecommunication and data processing systems is completely at their option. That is, they are not required to use this exception but may choose to make such purchases in accordance with the Public Bid Law or off of state contract. However, if the Public Bid Law is used instead of this process, written notice of that fact must be given to all bidders, and that notice must clarify that the Public Bid Law is being used and not the RFP exception.
